Rheinheimer sets a course for the muddy conditions

It was a rainy, muddy day for the start of the Future Hunters at the Prince George's Equestrian Center, and riders had to contend with less than ideal conditions for bringing out some of their most inexperienced animals. But despite the conditions many of the scores were in the mid to upper 80's.

Although Capital Challenge draws the best young hunters from across the country, without Michael Rheinheimer taking the weather into consideration when constructing the course for the five sections of future hunters, the scores posted might have been much different.

Rheinheimer explained how he altered his plan saying, "I made it a little more simple – just inside and outside lines, no in and out. I shortened the lines from what I would normally set."

When designing for the young hunters, Rheinheimer has to walk a fine line between constructing an inviting course and one that has enough flowers and contrast to encourage a good, athletic jump out of the animals. Then add a muddy track to the mix and there is one more thing to factor in when building. We all know that by making the lines simple and shorter, the riders can be more conservative and choose safer distances. And it makes sense that if he pulls some flowers and uses less contrast the horses will spook less – good for a rainy day - but if Rheinheimer takes away too much contrast they won't jump as well. Rheinheimer also takes note of where puddles are and "slides the lines" or moves the jumps so that horses are not jumping and landing in the same spots all day.

One final factor Rheinheimer takes into consideration is a surprising one - a muddy day often brings out better riding and better jumping. He explained saying, "I think horses and people can feel the rhythm better in the mud because they can hear it like music. I also think horses try a little harder. There are parts of going in the mud that are tougher, but I think there are good parts that come out of it."

Professional rider Kelley Farmer can attest that some good came out of Monday's mud as she piloted three horses to high scores and blue ribbons in the Futures.

Trainer Larry Glefke said, "We have a great group of young horses. Habana I have the highest hopes for." Habana, owned by Spencer Ranch, topped the five and under class with an 89.5. On The Hour, owned by Ashton Chewning, posted an 88 to win the colts and geldings glass, and Crown N Scepter, owned by Glefke, won the 3'3" class with an 87.5.

Glefke added, "It's marvelous to have the Future Hunters here. I hardly show my pre-green horses all year long. You can really showcase them here and it's fun to do here. It was terrible weather out there today, but they all seemed to handle it just fine. I couldn't have been happier."

In addition to her success in the Future Hunters, Kelley Farmer rode Rosalyn to the top of both Regular Working hunter over fence classes. Photo by James Leslie Parker

TRIM-TO-FIT T-FOAM™ EQUINE EARPLUGS

T-FOAM EARPLUGS CAN BE TRIMMED TO FIT THE EAR CANAL IF NECESSARY

CONFORM TO THE HORSE'S EAR CANAL TO CREATE A STRONG SEAL AND ELIMINATE NEARLY ALL NOISE

PRODUCED USING THE SAME CUSTOM-FIT TECHNOLOGY AS USED IN HUMAN EAR PLUGS

HEAT REACTIVE, SOFTENING WITH BODY TEMPERATURE AND BECOMING MORE COMFORTABLE WITH USE

THE PROPERTIES OF T-FOAM PROVIDE THE ULTIMATE IN COMFORT AND PERFORMANCE FOR YOUR HORSE

Directions for use:

1. Trim T-Foam EarPlugs to fit the ear canal if necessary.
2. Twist foam into tight cylinder and place deep into ear canal with colored side up. Hold in place until foam expands.
3. Once released, the T-Foam will expand and fill the ear canal, creating a tight seal and minimizing sound.
4. Remove after each use.
4. T-Foam EarPlugs can be used multiple times.

Please Note: T-Foam is temperature sensitive. If EarPlug is hard due to cold weather, warm first in hands and then proceed with directions.

Available in both black and brown to blend in to the horses ear.

Package sizes:

- 6 pairs (Specify Black or Brown)
- 18 pairs (Specify Black or Brown)
- 42 pairs (mixed colors, all black, all brown*)
- Container (mixed colors, all black, all brown*)
